VISUALSOFT

Project size: 14,850 ft²

Visualsoft wanted to create a campus feel with plenty of room for the social aspect of the working day.

When we showed them the art of the possible, they embraced all the benefits a better arrangement of space could bring. So, we rolled up our sleeves and got on with a corporate campus design to support their HR talent attraction and retention strategies. The fit out included many practically challenging aspects to install, yet was very rewarding to deliver.

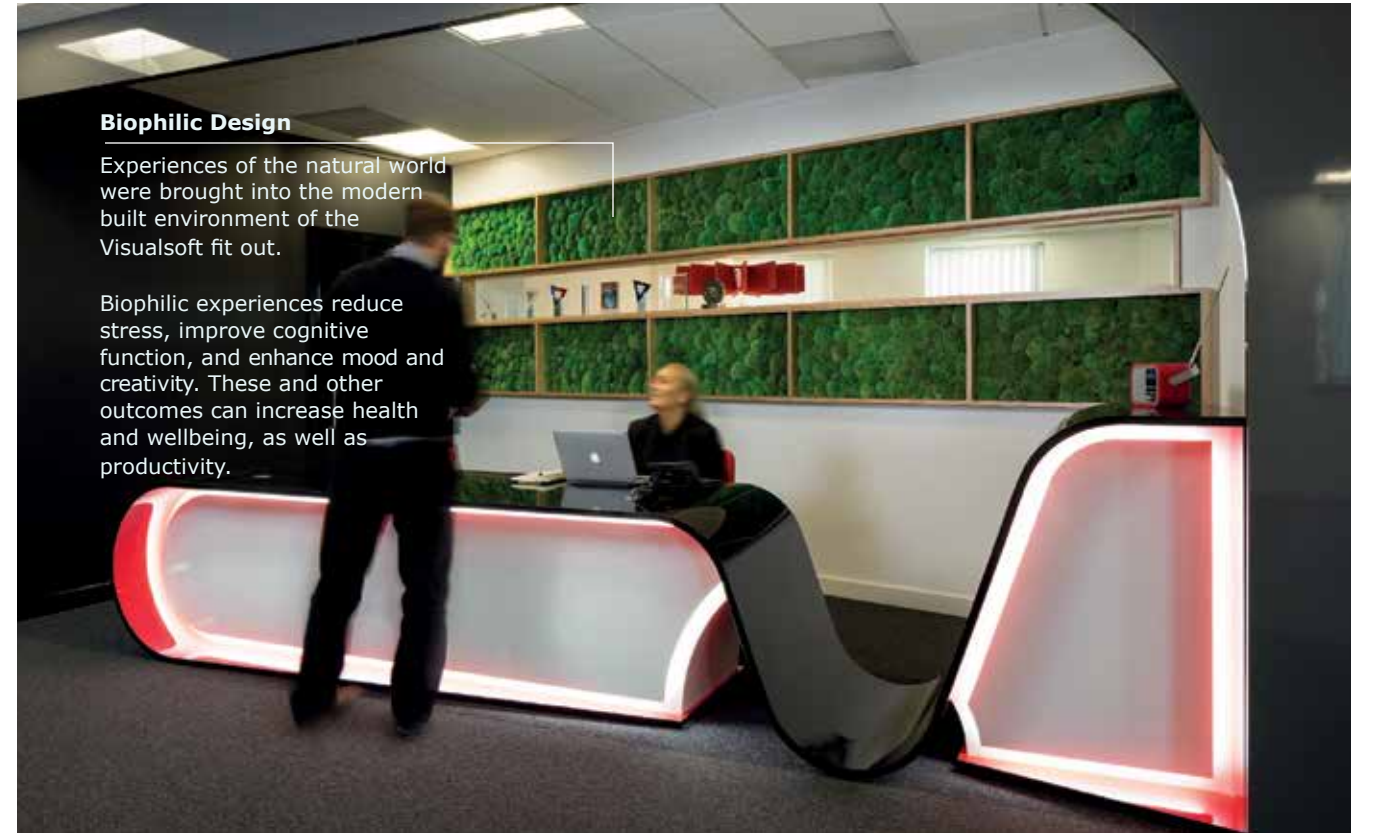

Biophilic Design

Experiences of the natural world were brought into the modern built environment of the Visualsoft fit out.

Biophilic experiences reduce stress, improve cognitive function, and enhance mood and creativity. These and other outcomes can increase health and wellbeing, as well as productivity.

"The interior designs are intended to not only complement what we do as a digital company and keep our staff motivated, but also to add a campus environment, much like Google and other dot.com companies have achieved in California."

Dean Benson, CEO of Visualsoft
